CURWOOD CASIA ance of a long, low building, the low, stoping roof of brown shingles continuing in a long sweep from gable to the edge of the wide verandah. Of the entire structure, the one part of which Mr. Curwood is probably the proudest, is the fireplace and chimney. The chimney has been constructed so that the effect is as though the gods themselves had dumped down a great pile of stones of every conceivable size and color, and man had taken advantage of it. of the Ausable river near the Chase to create his smokestack through the bridge is finished and is, without pile.

The log cabin of James Oliver Curyood, located on the South Branch of the AuSable river near the Chase bridge is finished and is, without doubt, the most wonderful log structure anywhere in America. Mr. Curyood claims that he has been directly interested in a quarter million dolong the construction of the log cabin, he says that he was in the job for six watching the work as it progressed.

The construction work was done by Earl Dutton of Roscommon and serve of assistants, all of whom Mr. Curwood gives the finest praise for their workmanship. Also Ernest Richardson, who furnished the megnificent logs that went into the building, and Ora Billman for build he fire place.

A very excellent account of the hold cooking equipment of the Roscommon Herald-News, from which we are pleased to quote, as follows:

The manor, situated on the highest humble servant was chosen as president of the organization for the coming year.

In order to succeed in procuring benefits for our city, it will be necessary for you citizens to all lend a helping hand and help put the things over that may be decided are most needed.

As your president I shall endeavor to promote the interests of the town as a whole, but I cannot do it alone, so let's all put our shoulders to the wheel and start something beneficial.

We need to improve the appearance of our streets, buildings and yards. Advertise and talk "Grayling." Help our home industries by luying home-made products. We produce the best bread, butter, flooring and lumber to be had. So please demand Grayling-made products of your dealers.

Come to the next meeting of the Beard of Trade on Tuesday eve-

Grayling, Micha Nov. 20 .- "Rube Babbitt, age 67 years, one of the best known guides in the state and coun try, has seen Michigan's forests rav aged, its greatest and gamiest fish, the grayling, virtually erased, and one of the outstanding features of its wild life, the passenger pigeon, ex-terminated, but he is as enthusiastic regarding Michigan's outdoor appeal as he was in the palmy days of his young manhood when Michigan's opularity as a vacationland was un-young manhood when Michigan's popularity as a vacationiand was undersomed.

For 53 years, since 1873, he has been a resident of Grayling, the town named after Michigan's ichthyological favorite. He was there with Shoppenagon, the Chippewa Indian, and with this redskin, after whom a Grayling hotel is named, fished and hunted along the Ausable. He saw the first lumber camp built in Grayling in 1876. He saw the timber go. He remembers vividly the attention which the grayling, then called the "Ausable trout" began to attract in 1876. He saw and guided many of the noted men and women visitors who came from all sections of the country to catch the great game fish. He has seen rookeries of passenger pigeons 35 miles long, he says. And today, as you study him and talk with him, you think of Wordsworth's sphrase, "A man he seems of cheerful vesterdays and confident tomorrows."

In the early 70's, the grayling was a comparatively unknown fish: outside the precincts of Grayling, Babasise has some ideas on propagation. a comparatively unknown fish; out side the precincts of Grayling, Bab

Then the world seemed to suddenly awaken to a realization of the attributes of the Michigan fish. Men flocked into Grayling from all sections of the country, Rube Dab-bitt became a guide. Col. Norton and Charles Johnson of New Orleans, portsmen who in the early 80's be-tame financial backers of the pugilist, Jake Kilrain, came to Gravling, seek Jake Kilrain, came to Grayling, seeking the grayling. York importers whose name is inex-York, importers, whose name is inex-Nork, importers, whose name is inex-ricably linked with the romance of sugar, and others, only slightly less prominent, visited this hunting and lishing paradise and were guided by Rube. He had their regard and their confidence and in some instance, their affection and today a number who have been visiting the Ausoble

"I'd take them down the more than 200 miles of the Ausable in a houseboat," Rube said. "When we got to Lake Huron, I'd sell or leave the boat there and then come beak and build. there and then come back and build another boat. Once I got $25 for one of my houseboats. Another time I got $40. We'd live on the houseboat and fish from small boats and associ-ations of those days will never be

It was the greatest fishing sport he ever had, he used to say. Many women eame here in those days and later to fish for grayling. Some of them were better Waltonians than the men. Names that I recall as being outstanding feminine sports women are Mrs. George Pomeroy of Toledo, Mrs. Judge Swayne.

"But the graylings are gone now. The AuSable river waters have changed and the grayling may never come back, despite efforts at culture. Then the waters were clear and cold and clean. Today they are warmer and contain too much sediment. The forests are essential to national welfare economically. But they are also essential to the protection of wild life and fish. When the forests went, the streams became impure through erosion. Soil was washed into the streams. Many fish will not live in muddy, dirty waters. Trout must leave or be killed. They cannot rosion. Birds and game also need the protection of forests. That is why I am an ardent advocate of reforestation and conservation.

"Tourists Have Helped

"Tourists and resorters are being attracted by the natural beauties we have. They have, through their advent, done a great deal for this particular section. Idle lands in this county which had the appearance of liabilities have become assets. Resorters and sportsmen have purchased lands here and built cottages. They are taxpayers. We want more of them. But we must begin at once to conserve what we have and to plan the utilization of more of our idle acres for recreational features."

Babbitt has given a lot of thought and affort to conservation. For years he was a game warden. He is never too busy to offer his gratuitous services as guide to others interested in conservation. He has some unique ideas on conservation. He conservation.

COUNTY NURSE GIVES REPORT ON CONVENTION

A fairly large number of citizen sathered at the Board of Trade room uesday afternoon where they listen ed to a very interesting and comprehensive report of the state convention of public health nurses. This was given by our county nurse, Miss Winchell, Preliminary to her address Dr. C. R

Keyport called attention to the importance to the public of the work of the county nurse. Invaluable work is done in the way of aiding in the heading off of contagious epidemics, and also in aiding toward the building up of better health among young chil dren. In every community there are children who may need physical attention which condition is not always discernable to the untrained notice of the parents. It frequently occurs too that children appear in the schools who may be the means of spreading disease, sometimes simple in their results but many times of real serious nature. Under the trained eyes of a public health nurser for whom the highest qualifications must be possessed before they may be granted license to accent such service, dise license to accept such service. dismuch damage may be done, thus, often times, protecting whole schools from disease and consequent expense

Ducit Amor Patriae It was the last week in August when hn Levine was summoned before he commission. Lydia and Amos vere summoned with him.

There were two long tables at one nd of the room behind one of which nt the three commissioners. At the ther table were the official stenog phers and Charlie Jackson. Before tables were chairs and here were ohn Levine and Kent, Pa Norton nd Billy, old Suste and a younger quaw, with several bucks.

Charlie spoke quickly to one of the ks, who rose and took the empty air by Charlie.

He began to talk at once. Charlle erpreting slowly and carefully.

I am a mixed blood. Many moons the man Levine found me drunk the snow. He picked me up and pr me in his house over night. en I was sober, he fed me. Then ne made this plan. I was to gather half a dozen half-breeds together, he could trust. In the spring he would come up to the reservation and talk to us. I did this and he came. We were very hungry when he met us in the woods and he gave us food and money. Then he told us he was going to get the big fathers at Washington to let us sell our pines so we could-always have money and food. Never be hungry any more—never.

Then he said while he was getting that done he would pay us a little and chop down the best trees. The Big Father will let whites get 'dead and down timber out of Indian woods, he said. But not let whites cut any. So we say yes, and though full bloods are very mad when we cut down big trees, we do it. For many moons we do it and in winter, white men haul it to sawmills.

"Every little while, Levine comes up there and we have a council and tell him everything that happens. All about things Marshall and other whites do. And he pays us always.
Then he tells us that the Big Father will let mixed bloods sell their pine lands but not full bloods. So then we agree when he wants any full blood land to swear that any full blood mixed. And we have done this now, perhaps twenty times."

The mixed blood and Charlie paused. Mr. Smith took up a paper. "I have here, Mr. Levine, a statement of your dealings with the Lake City Lu company. You have had sawed by them during the past six or eight years millions of feet of pine lumber. I find that you are holding Indian lands_in_the_name_of_Lydia_Dudley and her father, Amos Dudley, these lands legally belonging to full bloods. Amos Dudley is also the purchaser of land from full bloods, as is William Commissioner James spoke for the first time. "Suppose we go on with the witnesses before we open any dis-cussion with Mr. Levine. Jackson, what have these squaws to tell?"

Once more Lydia came to her feet "Oh, Mr. Levine," she exclaimed, "don't put all the blame on Billy! Really, it's my fault. He wouldn't have done it if I hadn't agreed that it was right. Oh, it is all my fault," she repeated brokenly, "all the trouble that's come to Luke City."

Billy Norton jumped up. "That's blamed nonsense!" he began, when Smith interrupted him, imputiently. "Be sented Norton." Then, gently, to Lydia, "My dear, you mean that, knowing what an investigation would mean to the people you love, you backed young Norton in instigating one."

Another Car

A car of agricultural limestone has been ordered for Joseph Sullivan, who has bought the McIntyre place, north of "T-Town."

Mr. Sullivan will apply the lime at once on fall-plowed ground, at the rate of three tons per acre. In the spring it will be dragged in, then commercial ferilizer will be liberally applied and dragged in, and the whole 15 acres will be seeded to the best certified, scarified, northering grown Grimm alfalfa seed to be found.

This is the seventh car of agricultural lime to be brought into our tural lime to be brought into our tural lime to be brought into our county in 1926. The total weight of the seven cars is 350 tons. It will help put the greese where the squeak is.

We shipped in 280 tons last year, and nearly as much the year before, and some in previous years.

If we can keep this up a while we are going to make a creditable showning of alfalfa.

Without lime and alfalfa we have not many farmers who will last long; our when the soil gets so it will not wondering to a man who will make a better dairyman out of a man if any-thing can make a change in him.
